

A Day's Tour of LOUISVILLE

Cave Hill Cemetery, 701 Baxter—The graves of famous men and women, among them George Rogers Clark and George Keats, brother of the English poet, are contained in this cemetery, regarded as one of the nation's most beautiful. Many rare trees and shrubs, all labeled, make it an outstanding arboretum, while its lakes are populated by black and white swans, geese and other waterbirds.

From the main entrance of Cave Hill, turn left on Bardstown Road (U. S. 31-E, U. S. 150) and drive two miles south to Wendell Avenue and Farmington, the historic Speed mansion.

Farmington, 3303 Bardstown Road — Designed by Thomas Jefferson and built by Judge John Speed in 1810, the historic mansion has now been restored. Here John James Audubon, the naturalist, stayed and here Abraham Lincoln visited his lifelong friend, Joshua Speed, the son of the builder. James Speed, another member of this distinguished family, was Lincoln's Attorney-General. Farmington is open Tuesday through Saturday from 10:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and on Sundays from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m.

A block on out Bardstown Road from Farmington, turn right onto the Watterson Expressway (I-264 East).

(For a tour that will be of special interest to women, from Farmington remain on Bardstown Road two miles to Buechel Bank Road, turn right and follow the markers to Appliance Park, home of General Electric Company's Monogram Hall. The hall, which is open to the public from 10:00 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and 1:30 to 5:00 p.m., except holidays, features an exhibit of kitchen and home appliances. To resume the historic and cultural tour, return to Bardstown Road, turn left and continue to Watterson Expressway (I-264) and turn right.)

A Day's Tour of LOUISVILLE

Drive east to the point where the expressway indicates a junction with Brownsboro Road (U.S. 42). Turn left on Brownsboro Road and drive a short distance to Zachary Taylor National Cemetery.

Zachary Taylor National Cemetery — 4701 Brownsboro Road—A monument marking the grave of the 12th President dominates the reservation. Taylor was less than a year old when he moved with his parents to Kentucky and settled in the home which is within sight of the cemetery.

At the cemetery entrance, turn right and drive past one road to Blankenbaker Lane and turn right. A marker a quarter of a mile down Blankenbaker locates Springfield, the home of Taylor, now privately owned and not open to the public. Continue north to Locust Grove, the mansion where George Rogers Clark spent his last years.

Locust Grove, 561 Blankenbaker — In this beautiful old mansion, George Rogers Clark spent his last years. Begun in 1790 by Clark's brother-in-law, William Croghan, the house is a fine example of Georgian architecture. The founder of Louisville lived here from 1809 until his death